DESIGN PREVIEW FOR REVIEW

The new Pegasus Medical Centre website: homepage design

What the homepage will look like on a computer and on a phone, how the site behaves, which pages come next, and the short list of things we need from the clinic to finish it.

PREPARED FOR	Dr. Usman Khurshid, Pegasus Medical Centre
PREPARED BY	Kempyre Groups
VERSION	Preview 1.0 · 9 October 2026
STATUS	Design for review. Nothing in this document is final or published.

Please read page 2 before looking at the pictures: every photograph is a temporary stock image and every word is a draft placeholder.

BEFORE YOU LOOK

How to read this preview

This document shows the look and feel of the new website: the layout, the colours, the type, the photography style and the way a patient moves through the page. It is the design we propose to build. It is not finished content.

The photographs are not Pegasus. Every picture in this document is a stock image bought for the design stage. None of the people shown work at the clinic and none of the rooms are the clinic's. They stand in for the real thing so the layout can be judged. Before launch, every one of them is replaced by photographs of Pegasus Medical Centre, its rooms and its own team, taken with everyone's consent. Page 13 lists the photographs we will need.

The words are placeholders. Headlines, descriptions, the list of services, the questions and answers, and the names and quotes on the team section were written by us to fill the design. They have not been reviewed by the clinic and must not be read as decided. Names shown as [Full name] are deliberately fictional. The real content will be thought through with you, written from the information the clinic gives us, and checked against Ontario's rules for medical advertising before anything goes live.

What we would like from you at this stage

- Your reaction to the look: does this feel like the clinic you want patients to see? Calm, clear, welcoming to older patients and to people who speak French or Portuguese?
- Your reaction to the order of the homepage: book or walk in first, then a doctor who knows you, services, the team, common questions, how to find us, the first visit.
- Anything that is wrong for the clinic: a service you do not offer, a promise you would not make, a tone that is not yours.
- Not yet: the exact wording. That comes next, with you, once the facts on page 14 are confirmed.

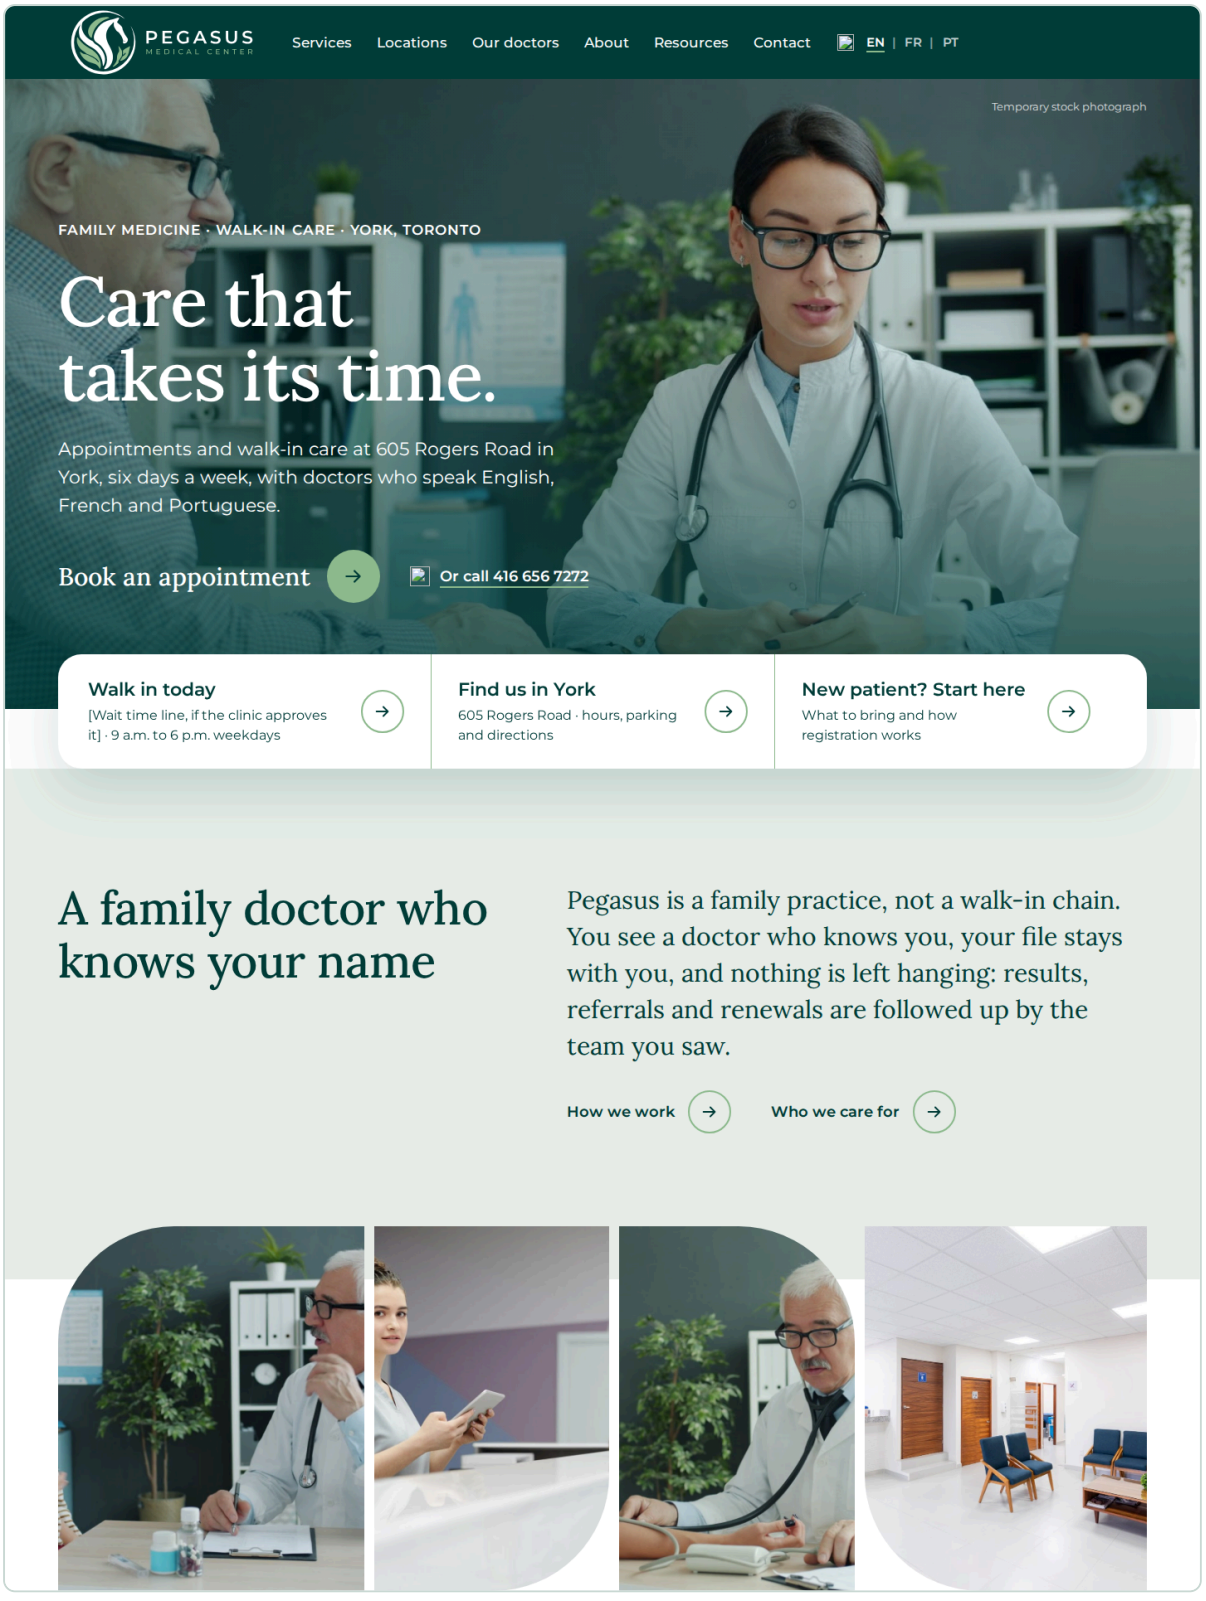

What is already true in the design

The address (605 Rogers Road, Unit D5, York), the phone number (416 656 7272), the opening hours you gave us (Monday to Friday 9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m., Saturday 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m., walk-in during all opening hours), the three languages, and the areas of care named in discovery: family medicine, walk-in care, children's health, chronic conditions, care for older adults, preventative health, contraception and related care. Everything else is draft.

HOMEPAGE ON A COMPUTER · 1 OF 5

Opening screen and the quick actions

A full-width photograph with one clear action, the phone number and whether the clinic is open right now. The floating card underneath answers the three most common reasons for visiting the site: walk in, find us, new patient. Then a short introduction in the clinic's voice.

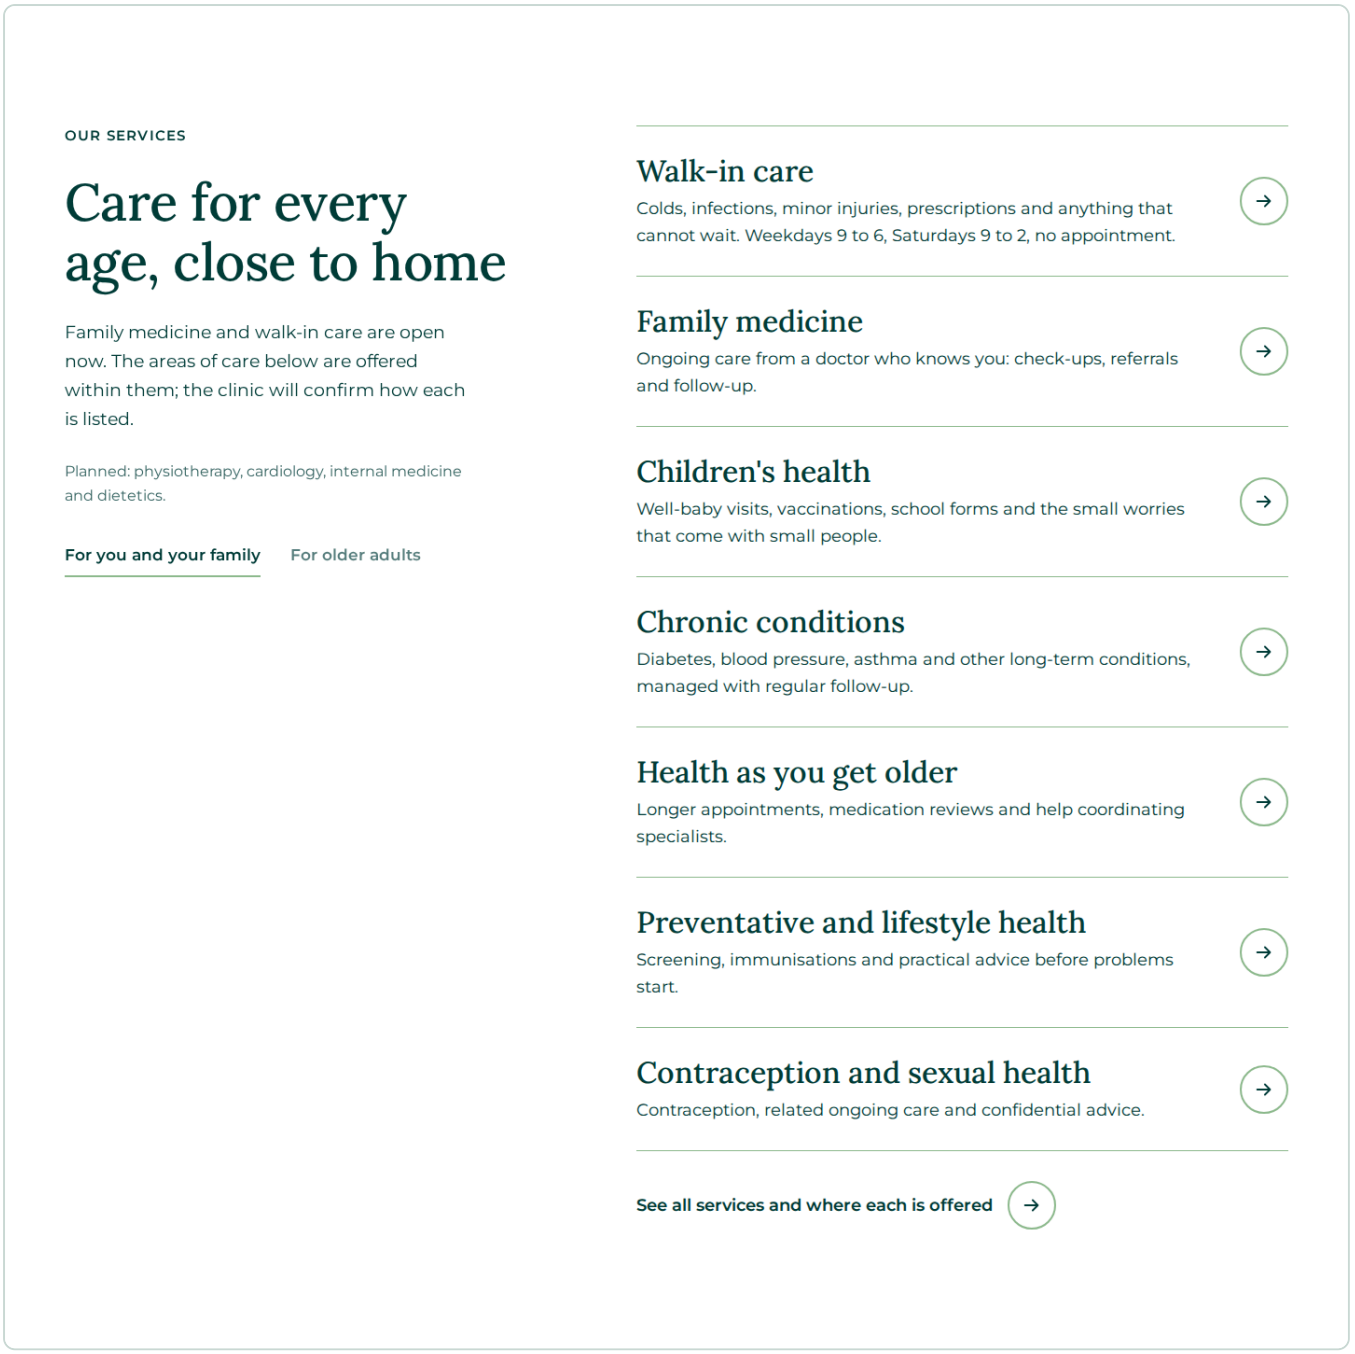

Stock photograph; draft words. The “Open now, until 6:00 p.m.” line is calculated from your hours automatically.

HOMEPAGE ON A COMPUTER · 2 OF 5

Photographs of the clinic, then the services

Three photographs of the real clinic will sit here (reception, a consulting room, the waiting area). The services list is written as plain sentences patients would say, one line each, grouped for families and for older adults. Planned services appear in a quiet line until they exist.

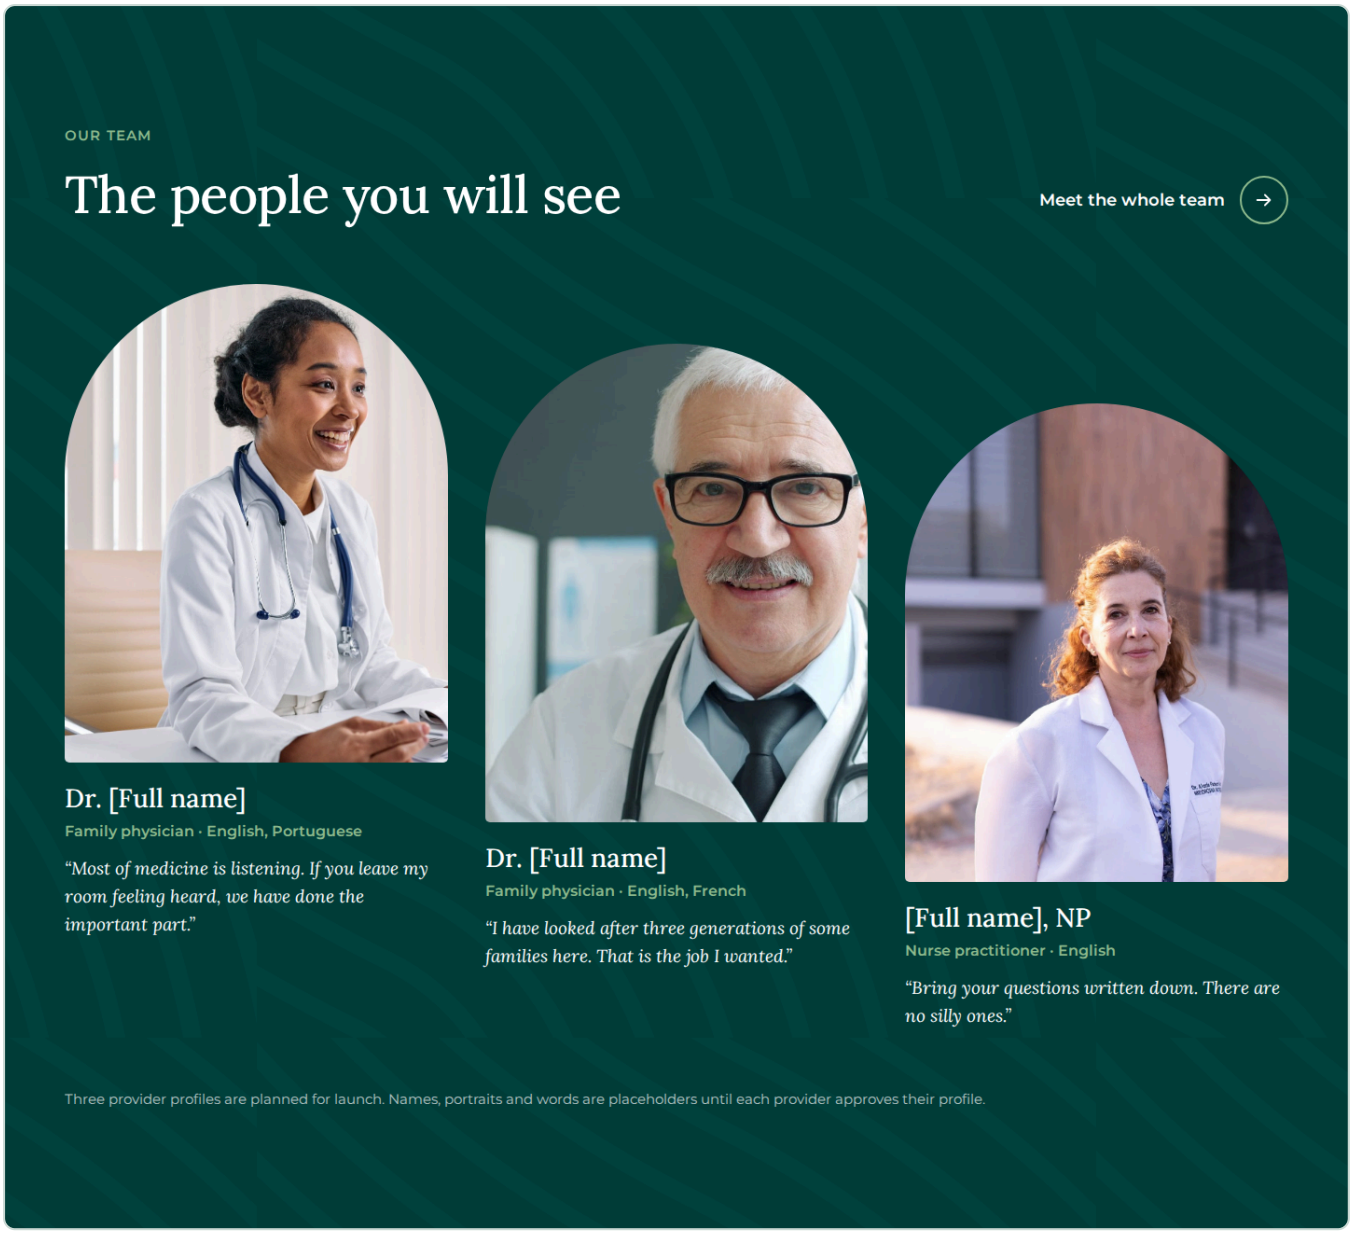

Stock photographs; draft service list. The real list comes from the clinic (which services are live at launch and what you call them).

HOMEPAGE ON A COMPUTER · 3 OF 5

The team

Arched portraits of the doctors and nurse practitioners with name, title and languages spoken. Profiles are factual only (name, title, credentials, languages, areas of focus) and each is published only after the person has approved it.

Stock photographs and fictional names and quotes, purely to show the layout. Three profiles are planned at launch.

HOMEPAGE ON A COMPUTER · 4 OF 5

Common questions, and how to find us

Twelve questions the front desk hears most, each opening to a short answer. Then the clinic's address, hours, parking and accessibility, with directions and the phone number.

How can we help you?

All questions and answers →

- Do I need an appointment? →
- Can I be seen in French or Portuguese? →
- How do I get my test results? →
- How long is the wait for walk-in? →
- What should I bring to my first visit? →
- Is there parking? →
- What if I do not have a health card? →
- How do I renew a prescription? →
- Can I bring my child without an appointment? →
- Can I choose my doctor? →
- Do you take new patients? →
- How do I cancel or change an appointment? →

VISIT US

Find us in York

605 Rogers Road, Unit D5
York, Toronto, Ontario M6M 1B9

HOURS · WALK-IN DURING ALL OPENING HOURS

Monday to Friday	9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.
Saturday	9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.
Sunday and holidays	[To be confirmed]

Open today until 6:00 p.m. (worked out from the hours, never typed)

[Parking and accessibility details: waiting for the clinic.]

Get directions → 416 656 7272

Draft questions; the real ones come from the front desk. Parking and accessibility lines are waiting on the clinic. Stock photograph.

HOMEPAGE ON A COMPUTER · 5 OF 5

The first visit, the closing invitation, and the footer

A four-step explanation for new patients, a final invitation to book or call, and the footer with the address, phone, the emergency line and links in all three languages.

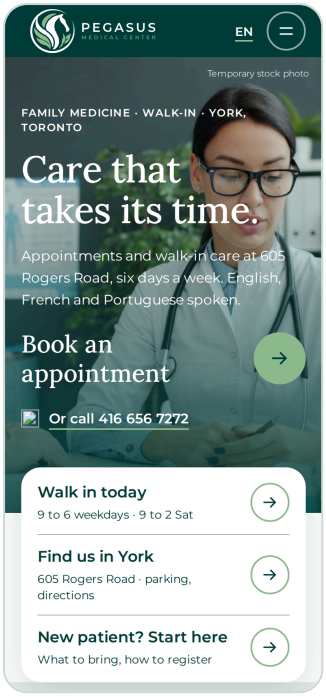

Draft steps and wait-time wording; the emergency line and footer details are the confirmed ones.

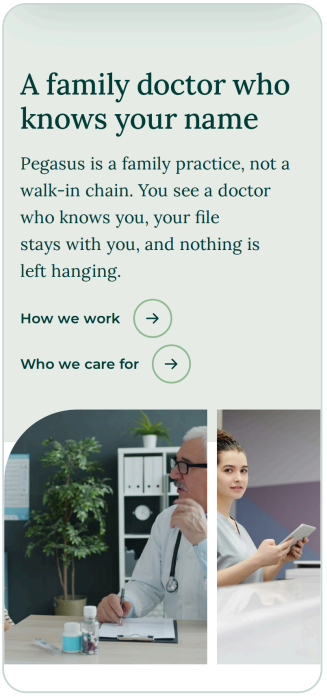

HOMEPAGE ON A PHONE · 1 OF 2

The same page, designed for a phone

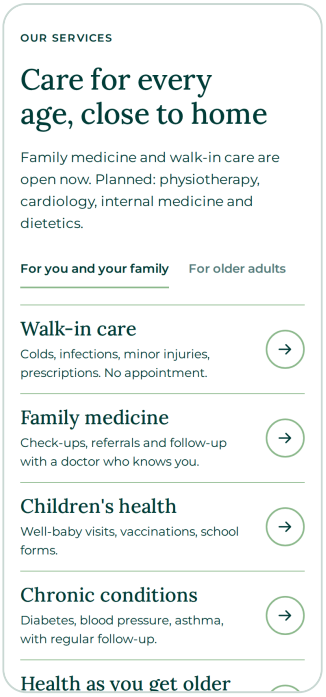

Most patients will arrive on a phone. Sections are shortened, photographs and team profiles slide sideways instead of stacking, and the text is larger. Read the screens left to right, top to bottom, as one continuous scroll.

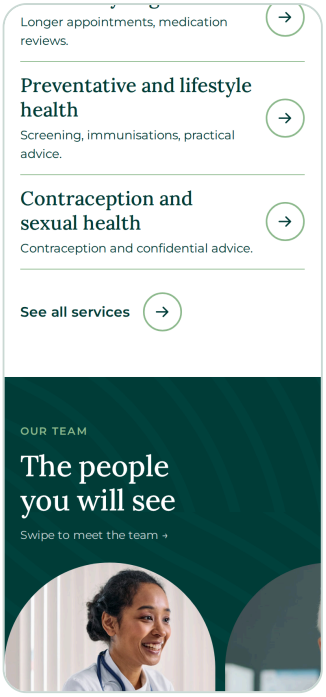

1 · Opening screen

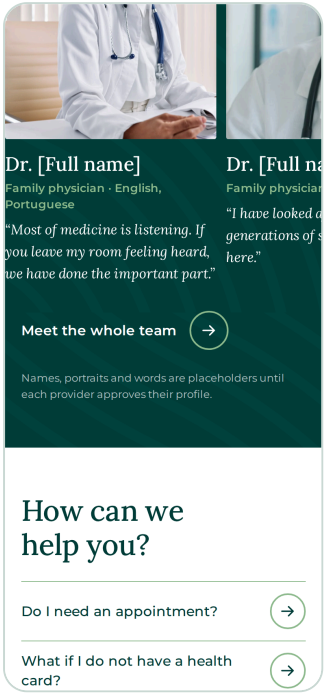

2 · Quick actions and intro

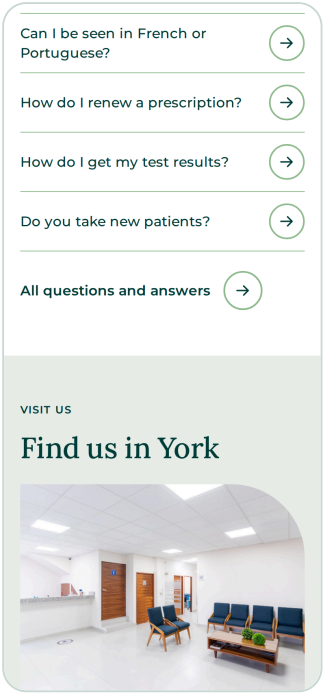

3 · Clinic photographs (slide)

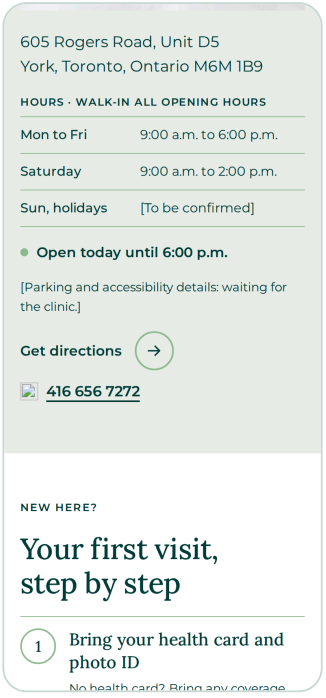

4 · Services

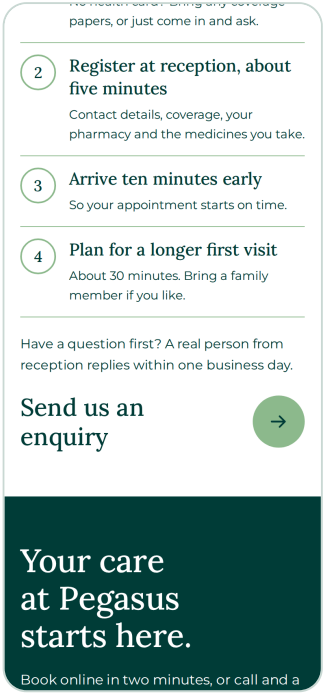

5 · Services, continued

6 · The team (slide)

7 · Common questions

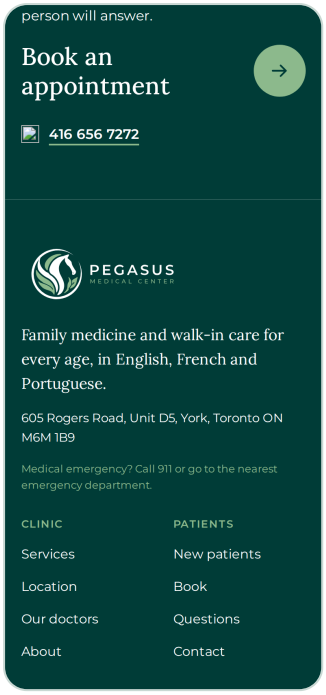

8 · Find us

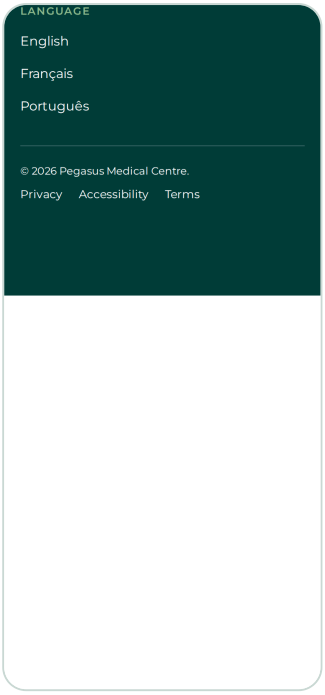

HOMEPAGE ON A PHONE · 2 OF 2

The end of the page, and what stays on screen

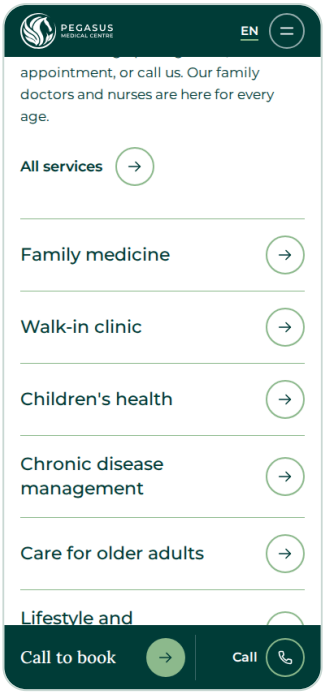

The last two screens, then two screens from the working build: once the opening screen scrolls away, a Book and Call bar stays pinned at the bottom so a patient can act from anywhere on the page, and the menu opens full-screen with large targets.

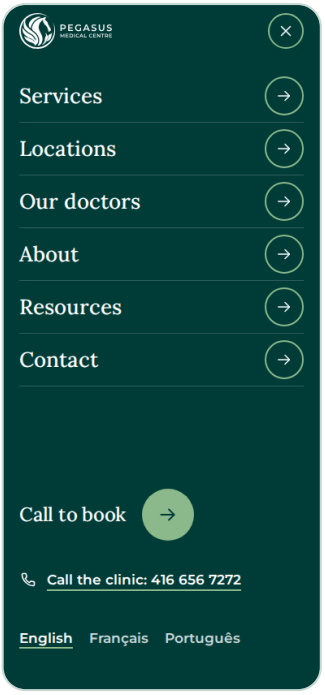

9 · First visit, step by step

10 · Closing invitation and footer

Pinned Book / Call bar (working build)

The menu (working build)

“Call to book” appears wherever “Book an appointment” will go until the clinic's online booking link is confirmed; the button then changes everywhere at once, without a developer.

HOW THE SITE BEHAVES

Six things built into the design

One way to book, always in reach

There is one Book action on screen at a time. On a computer it moves into the top bar once the opening screen scrolls away; on a phone it sits in the bottom bar. The phone number is always beside it, because many patients prefer to call.

Open right now?

The site calculates “Open now, until 6:00 p.m.” or “Closed, opens Monday at 9:00 a.m.” from the hours the clinic enters, in Toronto time, including holidays and early closes. Staff never type it.

Three languages, one address each

English at pegasusmedicalcentre.ca, French under /fr and Portuguese under /pt, switched by the EN | FR | PT control. Nobody is redirected by their browser settings: patients land on the page a link sent them to.

Staff can change what changes

Hours, holiday notices, services, doctors, questions and answers, the announcement bar and the booking link are edited by the clinic in a simple back office. The design, colours and layout are fixed, so nothing can be broken by an edit.

No patient information on the website

Booking happens in the clinic's booking system, not on the site. The enquiry form sends only a name, a phone number and a preferred day to the clinic's inbox. Nothing a patient types is stored by the website.

Built for older patients

Large type (19 px body text), strong contrast, big tap targets, no information hidden behind hover, and every link underlined. Meets WCAG 2.2 AA, which also satisfies Ontario's accessibility law (AODA).

THE WHOLE SITE

Pages that follow the homepage: what we have, what we still need

Each page uses the same design language and exists in English, French and Portuguese. The middle column is what your questionnaire of 4 October and the discovery sessions already gave us; the right column is what is still open, with the questionnaire item in brackets.

PAGE	WE ALREADY HAVE	STILL NEEDED FROM THE CLINIC
Homepage	Address, phone, hours, one clinic, three languages, the areas of care, "open to all" before booking.	Which Book action (link or call) [4.2]; provider names and photos [3.x]; the twelve questions [7.7].
Services and one page per service	Launch focus: family medicine and walk-in. Areas of care: chronic conditions, age-related health, children's health, lifestyle and preventative health, contraception and related care, acute illness. Planned: physiotherapy, cardiology, internal medicine, dietetics.	Which of these are live on day one and their public names [2.1–2.2]; walk-in versus appointment per service [4.1]; the private-pay list, marked "to be added more" [5.8].
Find us / Location	605 Rogers Road, Unit D5, York, Toronto M6M 1B9; 416 656 7272; Mon–Fri 9:00–6:00, Sat 9:00–2:00, walk-in during all hours; area served: Toronto.	Sunday and statutory holidays [1.4–1.5]; the hours mismatch with Google (9–5 / 9–1); parking [4.7]; accessibility [4.8]; transit note (optional).
Our doctors and profiles	Nothing yet. The design plans three profiles at launch.	Name, title, credentials, languages, areas of focus, headshot, and each person's approval [3.1–3.5].
New patients	"Open gates to all" [2.3]; patients without OHIP pay privately [5.2].	Taking new patients for ongoing family care? Waiting list? [4.5]; how follow-up is arranged [4.6]; typical wait time and whether to publish it [4.4].
Fees and coverage	Private pay without OHIP [5.2].	Whether to publish coverage and fees at all [5.6]; private insurance, direct billing, IFHP [5.3–5.5]; the fee list and payment timing [5.8–5.10]; policies [5.11].
Resources (questions, notices)	Nothing yet; we drafted twelve questions as placeholders.	The questions the front desk hears most, in their words [7.7]; whether to show the Health811 line [7.3].

PAGE	WE ALREADY HAVE	STILL NEEDED FROM THE CLINIC
About	The discovery positioning: family and walk-in care for every age, premium yet warm, welcoming to all.	A short conversation: the clinic's story, and whether the site mentions the former York Health Choice Centre name.
Contact	Phone, address, hours.	The clinic inbox for enquiries [1.3]; languages spoken at the desk and interpreter support [4.9].
Privacy, Accessibility, Terms	Standard emergency wording is drafted ("call 911 or go to the nearest emergency department").	Confirm the emergency wording [7.1]; the privacy contact, required under PHIPA [7.4]; any existing privacy statement or clinic policies [7.5–7.6].
Search and listings	The existing Google listing under York Health Choice Centre (3.8 stars, 16 reviews, unclaimed); the Cortico page "pending setup".	Access to the Google listing; whether there is an old web address; competitors or clinics you compare yourselves with [6.1–6.4]; who updates the site after launch and what will change in the next year [8.1–8.2].

Future Toronto and Mississauga locations are noted ("need to discuss") and stay out of the public site until you say otherwise.

PHOTOGRAPHY

The photographs we will need

Real photographs are what will make this site the clinic's own. One half-day session at the clinic covers everything below; we can arrange the photographer or work with one you prefer. Everyone photographed signs a simple consent, and no patients appear.

PHOTOGRAPH	USED FOR	NOTES
A doctor with a patient (staff member standing in), unposed	The opening screen	Natural light, calm. Landscape, with space on the left for the headline.
Reception desk with a staff member	Clinic photographs; Find us	Portrait orientation
A consulting room	Clinic photographs; Service pages	Tidy, daylight if possible
The waiting area	Find us; New patients	Empty or with staff only
The entrance from Rogers Road, and the unit door	Find us	Helps patients recognise the building; shows step-free access if there is any
Each provider: head and shoulders, same background	Team section; profile pages	Portrait orientation, plain wall, consistent light across the team
The front-desk team together	About; Contact	Optional
Small details: the sign, the Pegasus logo in the clinic, a blood-pressure cuff, a child's height chart	Section accents	Optional, but these give the site its character

Until these exist the site keeps the stock stand-ins, each labelled “Temporary photo” on the working build so none can slip through to launch.

WHAT WE NEED FROM THE CLINIC

Decisions that unlock the content

Already in hand from your 4 October answers: address, phone, weekday and Saturday hours, one clinic at launch, Toronto as the area served, the areas of care, "open gates to all", and private pay for patients without OHIP. None of that is asked again below.

The rest can be answered by replying to the message this document came with; a sentence each is enough. The items marked ● stop a page from being finished; ○ can follow later.

	QUESTION	WHY IT MATTERS
●	Which services are live on day one, and what should each be called?	The Services page and the homepage list.
●	Who are the providers? Name, title, credentials, languages, and a headshot each; and each person's OK to be shown.	The team section and profile pages. Nothing about a provider is published without their approval.
●	How do patients book? Is there an online booking link (for example a Cortico page), or phone only?	What every “Book” button does. We noticed a Cortico page for the clinic marked “pending setup”.
●	Opening hours: your questionnaire says Mon–Fri 9–6 and Sat 9–2; Google and listing sites show Mon–Fri 9–5 and Sat 9–1. Which is right? Sundays and statutory holidays?	The hours table, “Open now”, and the Google listing must all agree.
●	Which email inbox should patient enquiries go to?	The Contact form. It must be a clinic inbox, not a personal one.
○	Are you taking new patients for ongoing family care? Waiting list?	New patients page; the homepage wording.
○	Parking (free on site, street, paid lot?) and accessibility (step-free entrance, automatic door, accessible washroom?).	Find us, and the entrance photograph.
○	Should fees and coverage be published? If so, the list of private-pay services and prices.	Fees and coverage page.

	QUESTION	WHY IT MATTERS
○	Who is the clinic's privacy contact (name, role, phone or email)?	Required on the Privacy page under PHIPA.
○	The twelve questions the front desk answers most often, in their words.	The questions section on the homepage and the Resources page.
○	Can we publish a typical wait time for walk-in, and should the site say the clinic speaks French and Portuguese at the desk or only with certain providers?	Walk-in card; language wording.

The move from York Health Choice Centre to Pegasus

The clinic already appears on Google under its current name, with reviews and a map pin. For the rebrand, that listing is renamed, not replaced, so the reviews and the map position carry over to Pegasus. We will ask you to confirm ownership of that listing with us, and to tell us about any other place the old name appears (signage, phone greeting, health-card registrations, the Cortico page, printed forms, the old web address if there was one) so the change is consistent everywhere.

NEXT

What happens after this review

1. Your comments on this preview, by reply or a short call. Look and order first; words later.
2. Answers to the ● questions on the previous page. Content writing starts from them.
3. Content and search plan. We map every page: what it says, what a patient would search to find it, and how the Google listing changes to Pegasus. You review the plan before any copy is written.
4. Copy, page by page, in English first, written with you. French and Portuguese follow, checked by native speakers before use.
5. Photography at the clinic (page 13).
6. A private preview link of the real site on your phone, updated as pages are finished, then launch.

> All of this runs in the open: the design on these pages is already being built, and the working build is what the phone screens on page 9 were taken from. Nothing goes live without your approval.

Kempyre Groups · Pegasus Medical Centre website · Homepage design preview 1.0 · October 2026 · Questions: through the project's designated Kempyre contact.